

China and WTO Review

Stuart S. Malawer, American Editor

<http://cwr.yill.org>

China and WTO Review (CWR) is an internationally referred scholarly journal(ESCI/SCOPUS) which is semi-annually published by YIJUN Institute of International Law (Korea)

“U.S. Law & U.S. – China Trade Relations.”

Dr. Stuart Malawer, JD, Ph.D., is a member of the editorial board of the China and WTO Review. He writes a semi-annual commentary on the legal and political aspects of U.S. – China Trade Relations. He is the Distinguished Service Professor of Law and International Trade at George Mason University in Virginia, US.

Commentaries

“US – China Trade Relations: Tectonic Changes & Political Risk in the Global System – National Security, Industrial Policy & Protectionism.” China and WTO Review 2023).

“The US Trade Relations with China: Worrysome Developments in US Law.” (China and WTO Review 2023).

“Biden's Trade Policies -- Year One: Same as Trump's or More Aggressive?” (China and WTO Review 2022).

“Biden, National Security, Law and Global Trade: Less Subterfuge and More Strategy.” (China and WTO Review 2021).

“Trump, Recent Court Cases and the 2020 Presidential Election.” (China and WTO Review 2020).

“Trump, Litigation and Threats: From Queens to the World Stage.” (China and WTO Review 2020).

Trump, Trade and Federal Courts. (China and WTO Review 2019).

Trump's Tariff Wars and National Security (China and WTO Review 2018).

Trump's One-Year Trade Policies.(China and WTO Review 2018).

Trump's China Trade Policies (China and WTO Review 2017).